FIRST DAY EXPOSITION CROWDS VINDICATE THE PRESS AGENTS

These Enterprising Gentlemen Were Justified in Lagging Out the Old Familiar "Bigger and Better"—Features That Pleased Are Too Numerous to Describe.

Kingston's tented city—the second annual Exposition—opened in a blaze of glory at the Kingston Fair grounds at the foot of North Front street on Monday and the city's largest department store will carry on business for the balance of the week. The Exposition this year is bigger and better than the one held last year, and the arrangement of the exhibits and the placing of the exhibits is much better. For the benefit of those guessing the total attendance during the week at the Exposition—the one guessing the nearest to receive as prize a real live baby—the actual paid admissions on opening day was 1,173. At the opening day last year the paid admissions totalled about 800.

Not only are the exhibits larger this year than last but the vaudeville entertainment is better and three high class acts were presented in the big stage in the "theater" Monday evening. The same acts will be repeated today and Wednesday with an entire change of program and artists on the other days of the show.

The entertainment part of the program starts at 9 o'clock each evening and opened with Electro & Company, in an electrical act. Electro, himself, was present and allowed the "company," a charming young lady, to light cigarettes and cigars from any part of his person which emitted electric sparks at the slightest touch. The climax of the act is Electro placing himself in a large electric chair and while strapped in the current is turned on and "the company" lights strips of paper from his fingers and the soles of his shoes. This act left the audience gasping and must be seen to be appreciated.

It was followed by Hauvey and Francis, introduced as "the kids who would try and sing and tell a few jokes." Their line of patter was bright, new and entertaining and they sang a number of duets that were exceptionally well rendered. Mr. Hauvey is now a resident of Ulster county, and is the musical director of the Exposition this year. He also will be charged Friday evening, and any amateur who can do any kind of a stunt to entertain is invited to leave his or her name with him some time before Friday.

The last act was that presented by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Huling and John. Mr. Huling is the famous trained seal, and it was the best act of its kind ever seen in Kingston. John can do most anything but talk and he even tries to do that. He plays musical instruments, eats lunch which he orders over a telephone, and does several other stunts not usually seen in a seal act.

All three acts Monday evening were heartily received by the large audience and undoubtedly many who attended opening day will be present again to enjoy the vaudeville.

And speaking of the entertainment part of the big program, the concert, under the leadership of Harry Halsey, should not be overlooked. The band gave a fine musical program and all of the numbers were applauded and enjoyed.

But the real big feature of the Exposition after all is the industrial exhibit in the big tent. It is the industrial exhibit that gives the visitor a slight idea of the many activities carried on in Kingston from the manufacture of shirts to the equipment of the house both inside and out. As the visitor enters the big tent he is struck at once by the blaze of lights. There are no dark corners in the Exposition.

As one strolls along the sawdust paths and stops at each booth to see what is displayed it is to realize the vast amount of actual money tied up in the various exhibits which range from the hot air furnaces for the home to the furnishing of the kitchen to all modern equipment to the automobiles on one's back. Furniture of all kinds is displayed to advantage as well as the things that are the heart of every woman. Musical instruments, radio sets, automobiles, in fact most anything one can think of will be found under the big top.

To the aroma of the saw dust is added an appetizing odor of coffee which is served at some of the booths. At the big space occupied by Everett & Treadwell, steaming cups of Maxwell House coffee are tendered the visitor. In fact, as one wanders through the big top one may enjoy a real meal by visiting the booths where refreshments are served free. And then there are also the booths where one can purchase a hot dog, the ice cream cones and the soft drinks.

And nearly every booth in the tent is giving away souvenirs. In some of the booths big paper bags may be had in which to place the souvenirs will need the bag. Carry his booty before he has visited many of the booths.

As one enters the big top one is struck by the holiday spirit that prevails. This is enhanced by the music of the band and the genial air of cordiality that prevails throughout the tent. Everyone is out to have good time and everyone has a good time. It is their own fault if they don't.

A brief description of the industrial concerns represented under the big top has already been given in

WHY CANDIDACY OF J. W. WEAVER?

Asks Delegate Who Points Out He Had Equal Opportunity, Under Majority Rule, at County Convention.

To the Editor of The Freeman.

Sir:—I have read with interest the letter of J. Wells Weaver, the contestant for the Republican nomination for assemblyman against Simon B. Van Wagenen, who was the choice of the recent Republican county convention.

It is hard for me to understand how Brother Weaver gets the belief that the vote which laid the Roberts resolution on the table until after designations had been made "did not represent the true sentiment of the majority of Republicans, neither did the convention designated nominee represent the choice of the whole party."

When the Roberts resolution was read, a delegate moved that it be laid on the table "pending the designation for nominations for county officers," and that motion was carried by the overwhelming vote of 164 to 43. That happened a few minutes after the convention met for the afternoon session, and although the convention did not adjourn until two hours later I did not hear Brother Weaver or any of the other forty-two who voted with him make any motion to take the resolution from the table. They had plenty of opportunity to make such a motion, because after all designations had been made Chairman Elting asked the convention what it wanted to do about the Roberts resolution. The forty-three, including Brother Weaver, were silent. The convention was called for the purpose of making designations, it was made up of three delegates from each election district of the county, and it seems to me the convention acted properly in deferring action on such resolutions as the one introduced by Sister Roberts until after designations had been made. And when designations had been made, where, I ask, were Brother Weaver and Sister Roberts?

In America, we like to say and believe that the majority rules. That is one of the principles on which our government was founded. Then our delegates to the county convention, including Brother Weaver, claim to represent "the true sentiment of the majority of Republicans." The convention vote on taking the resolution certainly does not sustain their contention, and Brother Weaver and Sister Roberts and the other forty-one would seem to have been in the minority.

Brother Weaver's statement in The Freeman is nothing more or less a charge that one hundred and sixty-four staunch Republican men and women of Ulster county deliberately misrepresented the Republican vote who sent them there. What justification is there for Brother Weaver's statement, except the toleration with which the American public listens to the grumbling of a defeated minority? What would Brother Weaver have said about anyone who complained of the action of the convention if such action had been what he wanted? Why did not Brother Weaver become the candidate in the convention of the forty-three instead of Mr. Davis? Having voted for Davis in the convention, why should he now discover his own fitness in preference to that of Davis, or in preference to Van Wagenen, who was the convention's choice? Or is it because neither the Van Wagenen majority nor the Davis minority recognized Weaver as the ideal candidate that Weaver now discovers his own fitness? Why didn't he tell the convention about it? If Brother Weaver represents "the rank and file," why didn't he produce at least one Weaver delegate beside himself in the convention?

What constitutes "the rank and file?" A bolting minority of one? Do minorities always act that way? Throughout the glorious history of the Republican party, they haven't acted that way before.

A REPUBLICAN DELEGATE.

ELLENVILLE POLICE CHIEF RESIGNS

Ellenville, Aug. 28.—A charge of refusal to perform duty was made against Chief of Police Nickason by Police Justice Van R. Moffit at a meeting of the village trustees. Simultaneously with the charge came the resignation of the chief from the force, which the board accepted after laying the charges upon the table. The issue upon which charges were preferred by Justice Moffit occurred at night when Officer Smith, a traffic policeman, arrested a Pennsylvania motorist, and accompanied him to Judge Moffit's residence. Ordered to lock the man up when he became abusive, Chief Nickason refused, stating the man was the traffic officer's prisoner. The board has engaged Harrison Barnes to take the position vacated by Chief Nickason.

call for it. The shirt is exhibited and will be given to anyone it will fit. Particulars will be given by Mr. Fessenden to all who stop at the booth and ask.

In the opinion of The Freeman reporter who visited the Exposition the most attractive exhibit is that of the Up-to-date Company. It cannot be described, but must be seen. This last sentence applies to the entire position.

ONE MORALITY STANDARD NEXT ISSUE, SAYS BRYAN

By Telegram to The Freeman. New Orleans, La., Aug. 28.—

A single standard of morality for men and women alike—this is the next great moral issue before the people, William Jennings Bryan declared in an interview today, before leaving for Los Angeles.

"The single standard of morality is coming as surely as prohibition came—and that is here to stay," Bryan said.

The need of the world today is to get "back to God and a sense of personal responsibility," Bryan said. He again denounced the proposition of Darwin, saying Darwinism is the most demoralizing development of the nineteenth century.

"Man has his choice of looking up to God or down to the brutes for his origin," Bryan said. "Why look down to the brutes?"

"Looking back over the past third of a century since I was elected to congress thirty-two years ago," Bryan stated, "My outstanding impression is this: Trust the people. They will all ways solve the problems in the right way if you give them time."

PINCHOT HEARS CASES OF BOTH

By Telegram to The Freeman. Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—With both sides of the coal dispute before him, following the executive meeting with the committee of the anthracite operators, Governor Gifford Pinchot this afternoon planned to open negotiations between both sides in an effort to avert the threatened coal strike, now scheduled for September 1st.

The operators held a conference with the governor this morning, adjourning at noon.

In the morning conference, it was learned, the operators presented their case just as the miners put their view of the dispute before the governor yesterday afternoon.

At two o'clock, Governor Pinchot is to meet representatives of the miners, laying before them the case of the operators as it was presented this morning.

OFFER OF BABY INSPIRES HORROR

It's a Case for One of Welfare Societies, Writes C. H. R.—To What Depths Has This City Sunk?

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 27, 1923. Editor, The Freeman:

Dear Sir: It was with a feeling of horror that I read in your paper Saturday night in glaring headlines that the Kingston Exposition was to give away a real live baby, using this as an attraction, it is presumed.

To what depths has this city sunk that a mother finding the burden of caring for the little one altogether too much must take this means of providing for the future of the child? Why should she have to take this means of disposing of her baby?

There are no doubt many childless couples in the city who would be only too glad to assume the responsibility of caring for this little one.

I personally inquired of the management of the Exposition as to the parents of this little one but could get no information other than that it was healthy and of good parentage and that they reserved the right to decide as to the responsibility of the person winning the baby.

It seems to me a case for some one of our welfare societies to investigate.

Yours etc., C. H. R.

"PAINTER" RESPONSIBLE FOR ANOTHER DEATH.

"Peter's Painter" has not been seen nor heard in several weeks and people in the Bearsville section are wondering if the wide publicity he received has caused him to seek other haunts. However, granting that he has gone, some of the effects, so to speak, remain. One is a general feeling of apprehensiveness and because of this all the shooting irons in that part of the country are said to be kept loaded and close at hand by their ancient muzzle loaders that did duty at Antietam or "Springfield Sports" that will kill a man four miles away. The latest story that reaches Kingston about the "painter" doesn't mention the name of the man concerned, probably to prevent some coarse "Haw Haws" from his friends. It seems this man, who lives near Bearsville and is a crack shot and experienced "bushwhacker," has long been aiming for a crack at that "varmint," which he thought might be attracted by a number of prize hogs which occupy a large brush lot near his house.

The other day he heard a commotion in the brush where the hogs roamed and he promptly got out his rifle with which he used to knock off heads at 100 yards at the old time "turkey shoots." His heart misgave him as he saw a dark yellowish streak glide through the brush and in an instant he saw himself the hero of the countryside. His picture in the grave sections with that "painter's" hide dangling from his shoulder. "Bank!" the rifle that never misses in his hands, spoke and—well he's eating pork earlier than usual this fall and it's from a hog that might have taken a blue ribbon.

BERGDOLL SAYS FINDER CAN HAVE HIS GOLD

By Telegram to The Freeman. Eberbach, Germany, Aug. 28.—

I am certain that the gold discovered in the hills near Hagerstown, Maryland, is part of the money I buried there before leaving United States," said Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wealthy American draft dodger today. He continued:

"I could not describe by word of mouth just where I secreted my money but I could go to the place. It was in the mountainous region, around Hagerstown. I planted more than $1,000 there."

"I renounce all claims to the money. The lucky finder can have it. I congratulate him. I hope he needed it. I also buried some money in West Virginia, but I will not say just where. Maybe I will get it back myself some day."

Washington, Aug. 28.—The Bergdoll gold "unearthed near Hagerstown, Maryland, will be claimed by the United States government, which on May 27, 1921, seized all the property of the Philadelphia draft dodger. It was learned today at the office of the alien property custodian.

MORE WAGES, NO CHECK-OFF IS BELIEVED TO BE PLAN OF PINCHOT

His Field Investigators Report Miners Are Not Anxious to Strike and That Union Leaders Insist on Check-off to Strengthen Their Organization.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—Having delivered his no-strike ultimatum to the anthracite operators and miners in true Rooseveltian fashion, Governor Pinchot today settled down to the task of providing a common ground of settlement upon which both parties may stand without loss of prestige or honor.

At nine this morning, the governor entered into executive session with the operating group. At two this afternoon, he will continue his conference of yesterday with the miners.

From sources exceedingly close to the chief executive of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania came the report that Pinchot is most hopeful of averting a shut down in the hard coal fields on September 1.

This is to be accomplished, it was stated, by securing for the miners a small wage increase by assuring the operators that the fight for the check-off system will be abandoned.

Reports have poured into the governor's office from investigators in the field that the miners are not anxious to strike, that they would be satisfied with a small increase in pay and that they have no real interest in the check off, in some cases being even antagonistic to its adoption.

Armed with these reports, it is understood, Pinchot plans to get from the miners the minimum wage increase which they would consider and submit it to the operators with the definite understanding that the check off question would not be pressed any further.

Representatives of eleven states meet with Wadleigh to discuss distribution of soft coal.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Aug. 28.—Representatives of eleven eastern states assembled here today to discuss emergency measures for the distribution of coal substitutes in the event of a strike of anthracite miners goes in effect, as scheduled, September 1.

The governors of the eleven states—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland—had been asked personally to attend but most of them were represented by proxies.

Federal Fuel Administrator Francis R. Wadleigh, representing the government, said the purpose of the conference was "to discuss and formulate plans for the distribution of bituminous coal and coke for domestic use into the principal anthracite consuming states in the event of a strike."

One of the plans to be considered was the "Bryden plan," suggested by James C. Bryden, president of the bituminous operators' association. Bryden recently assured the United States coal commission that through his plan, the distribution of soft coal, the hard coal strike could be broken.

Representatives of the railroads were expected to give their views at the conference today, as the question of distribution was considered vital to the success of any scheme to meet the situation.

IRISH ELECTION STILL IN DOUBT

Great Number of Women Voters—De Valera Believed Elected to Parliament and Cosgrave is Safe For Parliamentary President.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Dublin, Aug. 28.—The great number of women voters in the first Irish Free State general election put the result in doubt today. The ballots are being counted today but the official result will not be announced until some time tomorrow. It was estimated that three-fourths of the 1,800,000 registered voters visited the polls.

Had weather in some districts prevented a full poll of votes.

Minister of Defense Mulcahy is believed to have been elected in North Dublin.

The election of William T. Cosgrave, president of the Dail Eireann, was regarded as certain.

Reports from County Clare are contradictory, but it was believed that Eamonn De Valera's election was assured by the rule of proportionate representation. Armed men rallied the home of the presiding election officer in Clare, seizing the ballot boxes prior to the election. They insisted in standing guard along side of the Free State military police during balloting.

After the ballots were all in the boxes were seized by the Free State troops for safe keeping.

Free State officials are positive that they would control the next Dail. Even if they do not get a working majority they claim they can dominate the Dail through a coalition.

The Orpheum management of this city announced on Monday that they had taken over control of the Strand theatre at Newburgh, N. Y. This theatre is a new one it having been opened to the public for the first time in March, 1923. According to Manager Sherry of the local theatre it is complete and modern in every respect and one of the largest in the city of Newburgh.

STEAL WHISKY.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Chicago, Aug. 28.—Ten men held up three guards in the Waken & McLaughlin bonded warehouse early today and escaped with 45 barrels of whiskey, valued at $150,000.

SMALL FIRE IN THE U. S. CAPITOL BASEMENT

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Aug. 28.—Fire of undetermined origin broke out in the basement of the United States capitol early today, but was extinguished before it spread to other parts of the building.

Hundreds of gallons of water were poured into the basement and the flames confined to a room in which was stored cordwood used in fire places in the senate office building. There were no estimates of the damage.

CONCERT TONIGHT.

There will be a concert this evening at St. Mark's A. M. E. Church, Foxhall avenue, by the Jenkins Orphan Band and Jubilee Singers.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR GAME BETWEEN COLONIALS AND PHILLIES

On Wednesday, September 5, at the Fair Grounds—Philadelphia Management Guarantees Regular Line Up—Possibility of Game Between Local Club and Boston Nationals on September 12.

Arrangements were completed by telegram this morning between the Colonial management and the Philadelphia National League baseball club whereby the Phillies will play the Colonials in this city on Wednesday, September 5.

The Philadelphia management have guaranteed that they will furnish their regular line up for the game. This line up includes Cy Williams, who at the present time is leading Babe Ruth by one home run in the race which these two players are conducting for the honor of having knocked the most home runs in the big leagues this season.

The team is managed by Art Fletcher, former Giant star, and although his club got off to a bad start early in the season they have been the talk of the National circuit during the past month.

Cy Williams continues to play brilliant ball. His dramatic homerun knocks are giving him rare prestige. More than that, Williams is playing a dazzling game in the field and covers more ground than most of the other center fielders in the National League.

None of the Phillies hitters are hitting over the 300 mark, which speaks volumes for the slugging ability of the team.

The improvement of the Phillies is a vindication for Art Fletcher. The new skipper had to face the most disheartening conditions. Most men would have quit in disgust but Fletcher never faltered. Instead he rolled and experimented "until he had his team winning and now in the last half of the season he is making the other clubs sit up and notice him. In other words the Phillies are no slouches."

Manager Brown also has an opportunity to book the Boston National League team for a game in this city on September 12. He has not decided as yet whether he will take up this offer.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MRS. CAT'S HOUSEKEEPING

"Meow, meow, meow," said Mrs. Cat. "How I do enjoy the warm sun!"

Now Mrs. Cat was sitting on the back porch and Mrs. Black Cat, the neighbor's cat, was with her.

"Yes, it is very nice," said Mrs. Black Cat, "very nice indeed."

"And pray tell me how do you like housekeeping?" Mrs. Black Cat asked.

"You were a kitten so short a time ago, and now you are grown up and have kittens of your own. Dear me, dear me, meow, meow, how time flies, as people say."

"Only so short a time and you were nothing more than a little bit of a thing running around!"

"It makes us old cats feel pretty ancient I can tell you."

"Yes, it makes me feel sad and old to think of how the young generation of cats is creeping up on us. Why really, I remember when you hadn't your eyes opened. But I asked you about housekeeping and how you liked it?"

"Well," said young Mrs. Cat, "I really like it very much. I find I have good service. There is the cook. She never forgets my meals."

"She has the best of milk and it is good rich milk, too. She gives me delicious breakfasts of bacon and often I have liver for dinner or some other delicacy."

"I am glad to say she doesn't give me my food in too big pieces. She has it all carefully chopped up fine for me so it is nice and easy to eat it."

"I would not like it if she became careless. I must say I'm not bothered with the 'help' problem as some people speak of being bothered with it. I have the best of service."

"Of course I am quite sure the cook knows she cannot do any way with me. She feels, I know, that I am used to the best. My mother used to say to me when I was young:

"Always make creatures think you're used to the best. If you let them think you're satisfied with any old thing they'll give you any old thing." And I've found my mother's advice very good."

"I have shown that I expected the best and the best has always been given to me. Then I have a lovely warm bed for the kittens which the cook fixed for me. It is so nice and soft, padded with lovely soft cotton. The kittens are very comfortable."

"I cannot complain about housekeeping. To me it is no bother. I don't have to do any marketing for myself."

"The Kittens Are Very Comfortable."

I have had all I could possibly eat without having to go out and even so much as sniff for a mouse."

"And that is what I call very satisfactory housekeeping."

"Yes," said Mrs. Black Cat, "you are really very lucky. I am fortunate, too, though sometimes I do enjoy a mouse. However, it is not because I am not fed all I want. It is because I love the hunt and the chase."

"Well, now you speak of it," said Mrs. Cat, "I think I will go mouse-hunting myself before long. Your speaking of it makes me think of pleasant past adventures. But let us take a little nap now."

Mrs. Black Cat wasn't in the least insulted because Mrs. Cat suggested that they should keep quiet and rest. She, too, felt like a nap.

So the two cats closed their eyes and they had a delicious cat nap and after a while as the sun was going down Mrs. Black Cat got up and stretched herself and said:

"Well, Mrs. Cat I must be going home. Supper will be ready for me. And I believe in being on time for my meals."

"The same with me," said Mrs. Cat. "And I know the kittens will be wondering what has become of me. I must go to my children. Well, glad to have seen you. Call again, Mrs. Black Cat. Good-by, meow, meow."

"Good-by, meow, meow," said Mrs. Black Cat. "I've had a very pleasant time and I'm so glad you're so comfortably situated. Good-by, meow, meow."

PICNIC SANDWICHES

As this is the season of the year when picnics prevail, the need for sandwiches is all ways with us. A sandwich which is easy to prepare and usually well liked is a fried egg sandwich.

Fry the egg in butter, season to taste and place on a slice of buttered bread, cover with another slice and your sandwich is ready. For a shapey sandwich always match the slices keeping them together as they are cut from the loaf.

Bacon and Egg Sandwich.—Take as many hard-cooked eggs as will be needed, chop fine and add a tablespoonful of mayonnaise to each egg, to moisten well. Spread on buttered slices of bread and top with a crisp slice of bacon. Cook the bacon on a rack in the oven; this will insure it from being soured in fat. Cover each place with another slice, trim and wrap in paraffin paper.

Russian Egg Sandwiches.—Take three hard-cooked eggs, chop and mix with Russian dressing. To make this, add chopped pickle, pepper or chili sauce to mayonnaise. Spread on white or whole wheat bread, cover and press together.

Salmon Sandwiches.—Mince a cupful of salmon, add a tablespoonful of chopped capers, a tablespoonful of chopped sour pickles and mayonnaise to spread, using about four tablespoonfuls. Cut in shapes and wrap each in paper.

Tomato Club Sandwich.—Lay thick slices of tomato on slices of buttered toast, sprinkle with salt and finely minced chives and parsley, add a layer of very thin, nicely cooked bacon and cover with another piece of toast, toasted on one side. Have the untoasted side up. Place in a shallow pan, sprinkle with cheese and brown in a hot oven or heat over a picnic fire.

A delicious filling to make Italian sandwiches is chopped ham, celery, mustard, cayenne and mayonnaise and chili sauce, all well blended, spread on wheat bread.

NT MELISSA AT EXPOSITION

Simply Gossamerly Gorgeous—Aunt of Captain Roadboy of the Gallipers, Two-Time Champions of the Mountain League.

"My, my, my," exclaimed Aunt Melissa as she alighted from a trolley car at the entrance to Kingston Fair Grounds Monday evening and saw for the first time the city in all its blaze of glory.
Aunt Melissa said she had read in Freeman for some time about Exposition and after talking the matter over with her nephew, Captain Roadboy of the Gallipers, she had decided to go up her valley and spend the week with relatives in Kingston and in the big show. Land's sake, she continued, Aunt Melissa, as she strode along the sidewalk path toward the Exposition, she simply gasped at the sight of the city. "Look at that," she said, "it's a passing show in them days." Then she proceeded to saunter it, and up by purchasing a pound cake.

"I might as well give the folks I'm going with a treat just to remind them that there is better coffee to be had than what they had on the table dinner today," said she complacently. "And you are giving me one of these here big paper bags to carry in," she continued, "well all I can say is that you are generous for me I come from all you get free is air."

Just for advertising purposes, she thought, well you folks must spend a bit of money that way, but I suppose you must pay or you wouldn't do it.
Look at that! That there funny thing about air furnaces? Do tell. Folks these days are still using wood stoves then the world do move as Shake-spears says in one of them unimportant plays of his.

As she moved along the sidewalk toward the Exposition, she gathered such an amulation of reading matter and papers that soon the paper bag she carried so big, proved far from large enough and she kept wondering where she would carry all the stuff it was being handed her. "Why I oughtn't to have brought a bag here to keep me reading all winter when I go back home, and it is sure to prove interesting. Of course I know that I can't afford to buy all the books I read about but then it don't cost anything to read and a body has keep the mind occupied these long winter nights that are a coming."

And then they are going to give a party on that stage later in evening. Land's sake the folks Kingston don't think nothing of reading money do they? Who is it feller in the black suit? Do tell.
That's a full dress suit? Do tell.

NGSTON EXPOSITION.

I thought folks only wore 'em when they was getting married. What's his name? Electro. That sure is a funny name for a man. Land sakes alive he ain't going to let electricity go right through his body. I hope I don't faint, if I do you will find the smelling salts in my hand bag. I only wish Nephew Ralph was here to see that feller. Maybe he could get some new ideas about an electric curve ball. You know he is always figuring up some way of pitching to those old Busters who want to beat the Gallipers. I'd just like to place that old Twin Gormley of the Busters in that electric chair for a spell.
"Say, that Miss Francis is a fine looking girl. I suppose she is engaged to be married though, but how I would like Ralph to meet her. It's about time he settled down so he wouldn't go gallivanting about the country."
"That's a trained seal. Mercy me what next will they train. And they make seal skin coats out of his hide.
Do tell. I always wanted one but never could afford it. Trouble is I have always been waiting for my ship to come in but I guess it must of had a shipwreck or something."
"Well, well won't the folks to home be surprised when I tell them all about what I have seen. Am I coming again. Well I should say I was. I am going to spend every evening here."

"LEAD A HORSE," ETC.

With more than ordinary interest will the older generation watch the latest development in determining what is best for other people and then seeing that they get it. The latest movement will be an effort by the Boy Scouts of America to drive out what is called the "Deadwood Dick" type of fiction, and in its place substitute stories to be prepared by well known writers along scientific lines, modern science furnishing the facts. A fund of $100,000, the gift of an anonymous friend, will be spent for this purpose.

Chief Scout Executive James E. West, in announcing the gift, says, "The time has gone by when writing for boys can be hack writing. The modern boy spots things worthwhile instinctively. You cannot fool him about 'Treasure Island,' for example. He knows it is a good book. A perfectly obvious step in connection with the development of 'Boy's Life' is to secure for it writing talent in every way equal to the talent that serves magazines designed primarily for grown-ups."

There will be no difficulty in securing competent writers—plenty of them, but the question naturally arises whether they can interest the boys. Outside of required instruction, it is difficult to compel a person to read. It is a trait of human nature that individual taste governs selection in reading. Can human nature be changed? Has the modern boy become so imbued with scientific progress that he wishes it served in his fiction? Armed with scientific facts, can even the best story writer embody the facts in a book which will be a "thriller"?—for that is the kind of story the Boy Scout executive aims to secure. Will the stories prove as interesting as "Treasure Island"? Can masters like Stevenson be turned out like sausage from a machine? Doesn't it require genius to produce a story even of the "Deadwood Dick" variety? The Boy Scout management appears to have a big undertaking in everything except spending the $100,000 fund.

SENSIBLE WOMEN SHOULD VOTE.

Sarah Schuyler Butler, Vice-Chairman of the Republican State Committee, has returned from Europe and is on the job trying to get women interested enough in politics to go to the polls on election day and do their duty as citizens. Miss Butler has a clear vision as to her task and she realizes that to accomplish anything means hard work. Her object is to adopt such measures as will lead women to see that they have a responsibility, and by women she means all women, not any particular group.

Miss Butler in a recent interview said her desire is to get the stay-at-home women active so they will contribute to what must be done to prove women are a factor in politics and entitled to proper recognition. The vice-chairman is fully cognizant that while much has been said and written about the woman vote, woman-voting is really in its infancy, and time will be required to convince them that it is as much their duty to vote as it is the duty of men. In the opinion of the vice-chairman the stay-at-homes are largely Republican, or those whose sympathies are with the Republican party. They are the women Miss Butler counts on to increase the number of Republican Assemblymen this fall and to regain the Senate a year hence when a President and Governor are to be elected. The stay-at-homes are an important factor because the majority of them reside in up-state Republican districts.

It is obvious that if women in Republican districts do not vote and women in Democratic districts do vote there can be but one result. It is equally obvious that if the same and sensible women stay at home, while only the fanatics and cranks vote, as they have and will, the result in primaries and on Election Day will be disastrous. Many women resent having had the franchise thrust upon them, but have failed to register that resentment in the only way they can do so effectively—by voting sensibly. The vice-chairman says her appeal is to all women, high, low, rich and poor, because without the help of all, the few can not make much headway.

By ROBERT H. HUFFMAN, CO.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?
 1. Is a shrew a wild mouse? And why do they call a disagreeable person a shrew?
 2. How long will a goldfish live out of water?
 3. Why should fungus growths in a tree trunk make the fruit itself unhealthy?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.
 1. They say all animals have some use. Can you give any good use for the coyote?

We admit that in the face of harm done by coyotes in raiding poultry and small domestic stock, also sundry small fruit patches, and in destroying wild birds and their eggs, plus some deer and antelope, it is hard to defend the coyote. He does check many small pests like prairie dogs, various rabbits, rats, and ground squirrels, etc., all destructive to vegetation. Coyotes also clean up a good deal of carrion and garbage.

2. Is "Joco weed" the right name for the plant that poisons cattle? Only a nickname borrowed from a Spanish word meaning insane, and applied to the weed because cattle act strangely after eating. The botanical name is Astragalus, and there are several poisonous species, beside some that are non-poisonous. Astragalus mollissimus is the most troublesome—it has purple blossoms and very furry foliage.

3. What is the biggest of the dragon flies?
 One called Epiaeschna heros, fully 3 inches long from head-tip to tail-tip. Wings clear (unspotted), head and thorax brilliant green. This species can be identified by a T-shaped spot on the head, in front of the eyes. This dragon fly sometimes gets into buildings.

MILK CONTINUES UPWARD SWING

League Producers Will Get 25 Cents More a Hundred in September—Dry Weather Has Made Pasturage Short.

A Dairymen's League statement says:

Announcement is made at the New York offices of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., that the price of Class 1, or fluid, milk for September will be $2.98. This increase of $.25 over the fluid price now prevailing, was agreed upon at the regular monthly conference between officials of the cooperative association and representatives of the dealers. The principal reason given for the increase is the shortage condition brought about by the extreme dry weather in certain portions of the producing area.

With the exception of Class 3, the prices to be paid to pooling farmers for September milk that goes into other classifications and is made up into various kinds of milk products, will remain the same. The price to be paid for Class 3 milk which is made into whole milk powder, condensed and evaporated milk, and used in the manufacture of hard cheeses, will be $2.25 flat, instead of being based on a differential.

With the exception of the years 1919 and 1920, when prices reached abnormal heights owing to post-war conditions, this is the highest price announced for September milk in the history of the cooperative association or its predecessor, the Dairymen's League, Inc. The association announces that in spite of many unfavorable conditions existing in the milk market due to lack of harmony among producers, the association is finding a ready market for all of its fluid milk. As the result of the extensive advertising campaign carried on during the past six months, League evaporated milk, ice cream and other manufactured products are in greater demand than ever.

In direct contrast to the pessimism prevailing among wheat farmers and others in certain states in the West, the 70,000 pooling dairymen who belong to the League are looking forward to the immediate future of their own business with considerable optimism. Many western farmers are apparently reaping the sad results of inadequate marketing facilities, resulting in unstable prices for many of their products. In contrast to this, the pooling dairymen are just beginning to see the beneficial results of inadequate marketing facilities, resulting in unstable prices for many of their products. In contrast to this, the pooling dairymen are just beginning to see the beneficial results of the extensive marketing machinery they have built up at great expense. They are sure of their market for milk and milk products and have reason to expect a fairly good average of prices for their products in the future.

When You Buy It Here It Is There To Stay

GOOD furniture never goes out of style—and never goes out of service! When you hear folks say it seems they are forever buying furniture, it means they are never buying the right kind.

When you buy yours, consider how it will last as well as how it will look. Elegance of form it must have to be sure—but appearance is a poor apology for substance.

When the furniture we sell takes its proud place in your home, it is there to stay. Think twice before you choose furniture, if you would only have to select it once.

SPECIAL SESSION IN SEPTEMBER

In Forecast by Close Observers at Albany, Especially if Coal Strike Materializes — Hyman Has Measure Other Object of Consideration.

Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Aug. 28.—While Governor Smith refuses to make any comment, there is a growing conviction at the state capital he intends to call the legislature into extraordinary session the latter part of September.

The governor plans to go to New York City the latter part of this week, and it is believed that a formal announcement of the extra session will be made shortly after Labor Day.

Emergency coal legislation and municipal bus measures probably will be the only important subjects considered at the special session, according to the talk at the capital.

Although the state has an emergency coal law last year that passed out of existence last spring according to an unofficial opinion expressed at the attorney general's office. Under this special law, General George W. Goethals acted as coal administrator last winter.

Should the threatened strike of the hard coal miners become a reality, it is equally certain that New York state will have a coal administrator again this winter.

New York City, Buffalo and Schenectady are demanding that the legislature pass measures which would permit them to operate buses without a certificate from the public service commission. A month ago, before the coal strike loomed in view, it was thought that buses would be the only thing taken up at the special session, should one be summoned by the governor.

Only such measures as are recommended by the governor can be considered at an extraordinary session.

The Democrats, it is said, would like to get some of the up-state Republican assemblymen on record before the election this fall as to how they stand on municipal ownership and operation of buses. Some of the Democratic leaders are said to feel that an extra session would do much to help them elect a Democratic assembly this fall.

On the other hand, Republicans are saying there is no need of a special session for bus legislation with the regular session only four months away.

LEWIS MOVES TO HOTEL IN PHILADELPHIA.

Won't Talk About Conference at Harrisburg.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, August 28.—John L. Lewis, today transferred his headquarters from Atlantic City to the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, Philadelphia, so as "to be closer to the scene of action." It was at the Bellevue-Stratford that Lewis maintained his headquarters during the five months strike in the anthracite fields last year.

Lewis this morning was non-committal on the developments at the Pinchot conference at Harrisburg. He said he would await developments before making any comment. Located here, he said, it would be comparatively easy to get in touch with Philip Murray, vice-president of the union and Lewis' representative at conference.

Asked if he would go to Harrisburg, Lewis replied that he "might" if developments warranted.

BELGIAN NOTE SUGGESTS AN INFORMAL CONFERENCE.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 28.—The Belgian reparations note—replying to the British communication of August 12—which is under scrutiny by the foreign office today, suggests an informal conference among the Allies. It supports the French attitude that military occupation of the Ruhr cannot be lightened until the Germans cease passive resistance.

The communication declares there will be "no evacuation in return for mere promises."

Belgium believes that reparations and inter-allied debts are interlinked issues that should be considered together. The note maintains that there can be no material reduction of armaments until the security of nations is assured.

The note points out that Belgium and Great Britain have received equal amounts of reparations thus far.

Dempsey Takes It Easy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

White Sulphur Springs, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Jack Dempsey continued his "vacation" today. Along about Thursday, however, the champion expects to proceed in a lively fashion to make-up for his long lay-off. He figures on having at least six huge sparring partners to work with and will cut loose his punching power for the first time since he pitched his camp here.

TWO COLLISIONS AT SAME CORNER

G. J. Schryver's Car Hit by Young Woman's and She Goes On Her Way—Another Hits Trolley.

George J. Schryver, the automobile dealer of North Front street, while driving a Willys-Knight automobile, collided with a Hudson car driven by a young lady at the corner of Maiden Lane and Clinton avenue at about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Schryver's car was badly damaged but no one was injured. The driver of the Hudson car didn't stop but sped right on. Schryver's car was towed to his place by the wrecker from the Eagle Garage.

At about 11:30 o'clock this morning at the same corner a four-door car driven by Mr. Kuperan, a Brooklyn manufacturer, collided with the Colonial trolley. Both cars stopped but both started up again and the collision resulted. Mr. Kuperan's car was towed to the Eagle Garage for repairs.

Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Landry and son, Fred, and Mrs. J. Gilbert. Before the guests partook of a bounteous supper, Mrs. A. F. Marks gave an address of congratulations to the happy couple, extending the best wishes and God's blessing for many more years of happy wedded life. Mrs. Masten was presented with a miscellaneous shower, among it a box of silver given by her daughter, Deloris.

Miss Van Wageningen To Wed.
Next Saturday has been announced as the day selected for the marriage of Miss Cornelia Van Wageningen, daughter of Assemblyman Simon B. Van Wageningen, and Dr. Ralph Lawrence Fisher of Germantown, Pa. The engagement was announced last fall, and a large wedding had been planned, but owing to the recent death of the mother of the bride-to-be the plans have been curtailed. The ceremony will take place in Holy Cross Church with only the families and intimate friends present. Miss Van Wageningen has chosen her sister, Miss Helen Van Wageningen, as her only attendant. While Dr. Fisher will have his best man, the ushers will be Dr. Harold J. Sells of Lebanon, Pa., Dr. Mortimer J. Sullivan of Montclair, N. J., Dr. William E. Brandt of Philadelphia, and B. Odell Black of this city. Miss Van Wageningen has two sisters, Mrs. Holte P. Colwell of Englewood, N. J., and Miss Helen Van Wageningen, a brother, Master Ellison Van Wageningen.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 28.—The stock market continued its forward movement at the opening today, the speculative favorites of yesterday again being in favor at the start. Gulf States Steel rose 1 1/2 to 35. Industrial Alcohol gained 1 1/2 to 53. Baldwin improved more than 1 point to above 124. Fisher Body gained 1 point to 174 and American Sugar 1/2 to 65 1/2. Chicago and Alton preferred led the low priced railroads and on heavy demands sold up to six. New York Central rose 1/2 to 99 1-3. Studebaker improved fractionally to 107 1/2. The oils were without much change.

The market moved forward with a good deal of vigor during the forenoon trading under the stimulus of the state department's virtual recognition of Mexico. Fresh buying caused the bears to hurry to cover and their operations assisted the advance.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Floyd M. Johnston, former president of the Poughkeepsie Savings bank, died at his home in Poughkeepsie Monday, aged eighty-five years.

Ransom Clement, a well known resident of Katsbaan, died very suddenly early Sunday morning in the 67th year of his age. A wife, one daughter, Mrs. John Craft, and two sons, survive. Mr. Clement was a man held in high respect by all who knew him.

The funeral of Bridget Brennan, widow of Thomas Kerins, was held this morning from the residence of her brother-in-law, John Gallagher, 135 Jansen avenue at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's Church at 9:30 o'clock, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul. Interment in St. Peter's cemetery, Rosendale.

Mr. and Mrs. James Andrew Davis of 110 Thirty-second street, Woodcliff-Hudson, N. J., formerly of Clinton avenue, this city, are receiving the condolences of their friends because of the loss of their two days old son, Warren Manfred Davis. The baby was born Wednesday evening, August 22, and died Friday morning, August 24. Mr. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. DePuy Davis of 102 O'Neil street. Mrs. Davis, who was formerly Miss Hester Naomi Auringer, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian P. Auringer, now residing at 65 St. James street, this city. Funeral services were held at the Woodcliff address, Saturday morning, the Rev. David Van Strien, of the Woodcliff Reformed Church, officiating. The body, accompanied by relatives, was then taken to this city. Interment was at the Rosendale Plains Cemetery, Tilton, N. Y., Saturday afternoon.

On Monday at 8:45 o'clock the funeral of Florence L. Mooney, daughter of Owen J. and Nettie L. Smith Mooney, who died at the home of her parents, at 97 West Chester street, on Wednesday last, following an illness of five months, was held and at 2:30 o'clock a high Mass of requiem was celebrated for the repose of her soul at St. Peter's Church by the Rev. John D. Neumann. The large church edifice was thronged with relatives and friends who had gathered to pay their last respects to one they dearly loved. By her jovial spirit and winsome manner Miss Mooney had won the love and respect of everyone who knew her. Her friends were countless as was testified to by the throngs of people who called at the family home to view the body as it lay, surrounded by a bower of flowers. Besides her parents she is survived by one sister, Winifred. Prior to her illness the deceased was a valued employee of the New York Telephone Co. She was a member of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary Society at St. Peter's Church and whose members visited the family residence on Sunday evening, in company with their pastor, the Rev. Father Neumann and recited the Rosary for the repose of the soul of their once faithful member. At the conclusion of the funeral Mass, John Raithe very feelingly sang "Thy Will, Not Mine O Lord." The casket bearers were: Charles Roach, Arthur Thompson, Leo J. Crosby, Owen Cassidy, H. McLean, Richard Van Etten. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery, where the Rev. Father Neumann conducted the committal service.

PROSPERITY IS STILL WITH US

And Will Remain for Immediate Future at Least, Says Federal Reserve Board in Commenting on Its Own Statistics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Industrial America is well on the road to "good time," the federal reserve board indicated today in a general review of business conditions for the months of July and August.

Covering financial as well as industrial prospects, the board sounded an optimistic note by announcing continued improvement in the volume of trade, heavy merchandise sales and a further decline in wholesale prices.

Although seasonal declines in employment were reported, the board also announced numerous wage advances.

A synopsis of the report follows: Production.

Production in basic industries declined 1 per cent in July though a partial recovery was noted during the first half of August. New building operations showed a rather heavy decline.

Employment.

Employment at industrial establishments showed a decrease of two per cent in July, accountable chiefly by seasonal reductions of personnel.

Manufacturers of automobile tire and cotton goods reported large reductions of employees. Some industries reported increased employment while a number of additional wage increases were also announced.

Trade.

Seasonal increase in grain shipments and continued large shipments of raw materials and manufactured goods resulted in a record number of car loadings the last week of July.

This heavy distribution of goods continued along record totals during the first half of August. By this movement of trade, the board indicated a general trend toward prosperous times.

Prices.

Wholesale commodity prices declined during the period, at the end of July reaching a point five per cent below the April peak. Prices of all groups of commodities were lower than at any other time during the current year. The largest declines occurred in clothing, drugs, chemicals, farm products and building materials.

Police Don't Know Whether It's Murder or Suicide.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 28.—Police today began a thorough investigation into the mysterious death of John H. Sutphen, member of a prominent, south New Jersey family. They were endeavoring to determine whether he was murdered or killed himself in his apartment on the twelfth floor of the Turin apartment house, No. 223 Central Park West.

Sutphen inherited a fortune a week ago, said to be more than $100,000. An autopsy showed that cyanide of potassium caused death.

The authorities, in their investigation today, learned that Sutphen had returned to his apartment in a taxicab or private motor car and that he was assisted to his apartment by an elevator attendant.

It was said that Sutphen has been living at the rate of $20,000 a year.

Captain Robert C. Spohn, a war veteran, and Florence Janesko, an actress, formerly of Buffalo, were said by the authorities to have been in the apartment shortly after 9 o'clock.

SIX AMENDMENTS TO BE VOTED ON

Proposal to Give N. Y. Soldiers
$45,000,000 Bonus First on Ballot—Home Rule Second.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 28—Recognized as probably being the most important of the five proposed amendments to the state constitution to be voted upon this fall, the one empowering the legislature to create a debt not to exceed $45,000,000, for a bonus to honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines of the World War, who were residents of New York state when they entered the military service, was today given the first place on the ballot by Secretary of State James A. Hamilton.

Second on the ballot will be the home rule amendment, authorizing every city to pass local laws in relation to its property, affairs and government, excepting the public school system, and restricting the legislature, except in emergencies on message from the governor, to passing general laws affecting all cities alike.

Third position on the ballot relates to water power development on the forest preserve, authorizing the legislature to provide for the use of not more than three per cent of the forest preserve lands for the development by the state of water power for public benefit.

The proposed amendment relative to the debt limitation of cities and counties will be the fourth upon the ballot this fall. The fifth position will be given the proposed amendment which, if passed will give inmates of soldiers' and sailors' homes the right to vote under the absentee voters' act.

Sixth position on the ballot has been given by Secretary Hamilton to the one proposition submitted this fall, and which provides for the issuance of not to exceed $50,000,000 in bonds for the construction of buildings for insane and charitable institutions.

JOYFUL WEEK-END AT "Y. W." CAMP

In addition to those spending the week at the Y. W. C. A. camp at Ideal Park last week, twelve young women went to the camp for the week-end and all report a joyful time of it. The girls' friends took them up to the camp by auto, so that they started off most happily with a fine auto ride. Arriving there they had a good time playing tennis and swimming. Saturday night they had a glorious camp fire, toasted marshmallows, and danced a Virginia Reel, after which lights were out and a good night's sleep in the fresh mountain air was in order. Sunday morning the girls took part in a very impressive Sunday service after which they hiked to Willow, returning in time for a mighty good Sunday dinner with plenty of chicken and fixings and ice cream. In fact, the girls report the "eat," as ample and delicious all of the time. The rest hour Sunday afternoon was followed by a good Sunday supper, after which the visitors returned to their homes most enthusiastic over their first experience at the Kingston Y. W. Camp. Great plans are now being made for the coming week end, especially as that will include Labor Day.

TRINITY M. E. HAS ITS BEST SUMMER

Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church concluded its most successful summer season on Sunday night when over two hundred people turned out to listen to the special music which had been prepared and also to hear the Rev. J. J. Henry deliver an excellent sermon on "The Rivers and the Sea." By putting on special music and by running a small ad in The Freeman this wide-awake downtown church has succeeded in holding large congregations during what is supposed to be the off season of the year for churches.

The Rev. J. J. Henry, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church in Poughkeepsie, has supplied the night both morning and evening throughout the month of August and his sermons have called forth a great deal of favorable comment from all those who have heard him preach.

The pastor of the church, Dr. W. H. Moser, will return from his vacation some time this week and will have charge of both services on Sunday, September 2. The special musical service at the evening services will continue at least throughout the entire month of September.

NEW GARDNER SEDAN MAKES FOR LUXURY

A new model sedan is announced by the Gardner Motor Company of St. Louis, and is now being displayed by Southard-Belcher, Inc., local Gardner distributor, at the Kingston Exposition.

While the body construction is closely patterned after the previous Gardner sedan model, there have been some noticeable changes in dimensions, body lines, outside finish, and upholstery. The seats have been widened, deepened, and lowered and the back of the front seat is cut out, giving more leg room in the tonneau. In this cut out, the Perfection heater is placed. The contour of the hood, cow, and radiator is rounded in place of straight line effect as in the previous model. The hood and radiator have been slightly raised.

The most distinctive change is in the outside body finish, which is Crane-Simplex Duotone, and in the upholstery of blue striped cut velvet. The windows and the windshield are all plate glass. The windows in the doors are operated by rotary type automatic window lifts. The door jambs are rattle proof.

The new model is built on the one chassis standard to all Gardner models and is powered by the five-bearing crankshaft Gardner motor. Standard equipment includes windshield wiper, Perfection heater, dome light, satin window shades. The price is $1,445 f. o. b. factory.

FORMER PASTORS AT CLINTON AVENUE CHURCH

The pulpit of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church was occupied on Sunday by two former pastors of the church. At the morning service the Rev. O. A. Merchant, pastor of the church 32 years ago, delivered a very interesting sermon. In the evening the pulpit was occupied by the Rev. Edwin Hunt, pastor of the church 29 years ago. Large congregations greeted the former pastors at each service and although both men have retired from active duty they both showed that they lacked none of their old time ability and on each occasion delivered very able and interesting sermons.

The Importance of the Best Street Lighting

Recently published results of a survey of thirty-two cities indicate that from 17½ to 50 per cent of all automobile accidents are directly traceable to poor and insufficient street illumination.

In a list of the ten principal causes of motor car accidents, POORLY LIGHTED STREETS rank fifth, and the census of 1921 showed that eleven thousand persons lost their lives from automobile accidents.

Bearing in mind that inadequate street illumination plays such an important part in these accidents, it will be seen how important is the matter of good street lighting in our National Safety Campaign.

Reversed Unanimity.

The great blade of the grading machine, running diagonally across the road and pulling the earth toward its median line, had made several trips, and much persiflage about Jim Irwin's forthcoming appearance before the board had been addressed to Jim and exchanged by others for his benefit.

To Newton Bronson was given the task of leveling and distributing the earth rolled into the road by the grader—a labor which in the interests of fitting a muzzle on his big mongrel dog he deserted whenever the machine moved away from him. That there was some mystery about the muzzle was evident from Newton's pains to make a secret of it. Its wires were curled into a ring directly over the dog's nose, and into this ring Newton had fitted a cork, through which he had thrust a large needle which protruded, an inch-long bayonet, in front of Ponto's nose.

As the grader moved along one side of the highway, a high-powered automobile approached on the other, making rather bad weather of the newly repaired road. A pile of loose soil that Newton had allowed to lie just across the path made a certain maintenance of speed desirable. Newton planted himself in the path of the laboring car, and waved its driver a command to halt. The car came to a standstill with its front wheels in the edge of the loose earth, and the chauffeur fuming at the possibility of stalling—a contingency upon which Newton had confidently reckoned.

"What d'ye want?" he demanded. "What d'ye mean by stopping me in this kind of place?"

"I want to ask you," said Newton with mock politeness, "if you have the correct time."

The chauffeur sought words appropriate to his feelings. Ponto and his muzzle saved him the trouble. A pretty pointer leaped from the car, and attracted by the evident friendliness of Ponto's greeting, pricked up its ears, and sought, in a spirit of canine brotherhood, to touch noses with him. The needle in Ponto's muzzle did its work to the agony and horror of the pointer, which leaped back with a yelp, and turned tail. Ponto, in an effort to apologize, followed, and finding itself bayoneted at every contact with this demon dog, the pointer definitely took flight, howling, leaving Ponto in a state of wonder and humiliation at the sudden end of what had promised to be a very friendly acquaintance. The pointer's master watched its strange flight, and swore. His eye turned to the boy who had caused all this, and he alighted pale with anger.

"I've got time," said he, remembering Newton's impudent question, "to give you what you deserve."

Newton grinned and dodged, but the bank of loose earth was his undoing, and while he stumbled, the chauffeur caught and held him by the collar. Again Ponto intervened, for as the chauffeur stood holding Newton, the dog, evidently regarding Newton, the stranger as his master's friend, thrust his nose into the chauffeur's palm. The chauffeur behaved much as his pointer had done, except that the pointer did not swear.

The grading gang laughed. Newton grinned even while in the fell clutch of circumstance. Ponto tried to smell the chauffeur's trousers, and what had been a laugh became a roar. Caution and mercy departed from the chauffeur's mood; he drew back his fist to strike the boy—and found it caught by the hard hand of Jim Irwin.

"You're too angry to punish this boy," said Jim gently, "even if you had the right to punish him at all!"

The chauffeur, however, unhesitatingly released Newton, and furiously delivered a blow meant for Jim's jaw, which miscarried by a foot. In reply, Jim countered with an awkward swinging uppercut. It landed fairly on the point of the jaw. The chauffeur staggered and slowly toppled over into the soft earth which had caused so much of the rumpus.

Jim Countered With an Awkward Upper Cut.

"Oh, cut it out," said a fat man in the rear of the car, who had hitherto manifested small interest in anything save Ponto. "Get in, and let's be on our way!"

Colonel Woodruff, waiting toward him in his runabout, held up by the traffic blockade, asked what was going on here, and the chauffeur, rising groggily, climbed into the car, and the meeting dissolved.

"Good work, Jim," said Cornelius Bonner. "I didn't think 'twas in ye!"

"It's beastly," said Jim, reddening. "I didn't know, either."

Colonel Woodruff looked at his hired man sharply, gave him some instructions for the next day and drove on. The road gang dispersed for the afternoon. Newton Bronson carefully secreted the magic muzzle, and chuckled at what had been perhaps the most picturesquely successful bit of devilry in his varied record. Jim Irwin put out his team, got his supper and went to the meeting of the school board.

The deadlocked members of the board had been so long at loggerheads that their relations had swung back to something like amity. Jim had scarcely entered when Con Bonner addressed the chair.

"Mr. President," said he, "we have no introduction to an audience in this place. Mr. Jim Irwin. He thinks we're bullheaded mules, and that all the schools are bad. At the proper time I shall move that we hire him for teacher; and pending that motion, I move that he be given the floor. Ye've all heard of Mr. Irwin's ability as a white hope, and I know he'll be returned to wide respect!"

Much laughter from the board and the spectators, as Jim arose. He looked upon it as ridiculous of himself, while Con Bonner regarded it as a tribute to his successful speech.

"Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Board," said Jim, "I'm not going to tell you anything that you don't know about yourselves. You are simply making a farce of the matter of hiring a teacher for this school. You know, and I know, that even if your silly deadlock is broken by employing a new candidate, the school will be the same old story. It will still be the school it was when I came into it a little ragged boy—here Jim's voice grew a little husky—and when I left it a bigger boy, but still as ragged as ever."

There was a slight sensation in the audience, as if, as Con Bonner said about the knock-down, they hadn't thought Jim Irwin could do it.

"Well," said Con, "you've done well to hold your own."

"In all the years I attended this school," Jim went on, "I never did a bit of work in school which was economically useful. No other pupil ever did any real work of the sort farmers' boys and girls should do. We copied city schools—and the schools we copied are poor schools. We made bad copies of them, too. If any of you three men were making a fight for what the Country Life commission called a 'new kind of rural school,' I'd say fight. But you aren't. You're just making individual fights for your favorite teachers."

Jim Irwin made a somewhat lengthy speech after the awkwardness wore off. He adjured Bonner, Peterson and Peterson to study his plan of a new kind of country school—in which the work of the school should be correlated with the life of the home and the farm—a school which would be in the highest degree cultural by being consciously useful and obviously practical.

Sharp spats of applause from the useless hands of Newton Bronson gave the final touch of absurdity to a situation which Jim had felt to be ridiculous all through. Had it not been for Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!" stinging him, had it not been for the absurd notion that perhaps, after they had heard his speech, they would place him in charge of the school, and that he might be able to do something really important in it, he would not have been there. As he sat down, he knew himself a dreamer. The nodding board of directors, the secretary, actually snoring, the bored audience restored the field-hand to a sense of his proper place.

"We have had the privilege of listening," said Con Bonner, rising, "to a great speech, Mr. President. Making a good speech is one thing, and teaching a good school is another, but in order to bring this matter before the board, I nominate Mr. James E. Irwin, the Boy Orator of the Woodruff district, and the new white hope, for the job of teacher of this school, and I move that when he shall have received a majority of the votes of this board, the secretary and president be instructed to enter into a contract with him for the coming year."

The president followed usage when he said: "If there's no objection, it will be so ordered. Prepare the ballots for a vote on the election of teacher, Mr. Secretary."

There was no surprise in view of the nomination of Jim Irwin by the blarneying Bonner when the Secretary smoothed out the first ballot, and read: "James E. Irwin, one." But when the next slip came forth, "James E. Irwin, two," the board of directors of the Woodruff Independent district were stunned at the slowly dawning knowledge that they had made an election! Before they had rallied, the secretary drew from the box the third and last ballot, and read, "James E. Irwin, three."

President Bronson choked as he announced the result—choked and stammered, and made very hard weather of it, but he went through with the motion, as we all run in our grooves.

"The ballot having shown the unanimous election of James E. Irwin, I declare him elected."

He dropped into his chair, while the secretary, a very methodical man, drew from his portfolio a contract duly drawn up save the name and signature. This he calmly filled out, and passed over to the president, pointing to the dotted line. Mr. Bronson would have signed his own death-warrant at that moment, not to mention a perfectly legal document, and signed with Peterson and Bonner looking on stonily. The secretary signed and showed the contract over to Jim Irwin.

"Sign there," he said. Jim looked it over, saw the other signatures, and felt an impulse to dodge the whole thing. Then he thought of Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!"—and he signed!

"Move we adjourn," said Peterson. "No objection 'tis so ordered!" said Mr. Bronson.

The secretary and Jim went out, while the directors waited.

"What the Billy!" began Bonner, and finished lamely: "What for did you vote for the dub, Ez?"

"I voted for him," replied Bronson, "because he fought for my boy this afternoon. I didn't want it stuck into him too hard. I wanted him to have one vote."

"Ah! I wanted him to have one vote, too," said Bonner. "I thought myself the only dang fool on the board—'n' he made a speech that aimed wan vote—but for the love of him, that dub for a teacher! What come over you, Haskon—you voted for him, too!"

"Ay wanted him to have one vote, too," said Peterson.

And in this wise, Jim became the teacher in the Woodruff district—all on account of Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!"
